Evergreen Class – Home/School Communication Books Update

Dear Parents/Guardians,

As you are already aware, we are committed to ensuring that you have important information about your child's day at school. In addition to communicating this via verbal feedback from a Key Staff Member at the end of the day, your child has a Home/School Communication Book which records key information on a daily basis. This usually includes information such as, daily activities, special events, peer interactions, learning and progress, wellbeing updates and highlights of the day. These daybooks are also a great tool to provide you with talking points about your child's day to increase their communication about school at home.

We would like to utilise our Home/School Communication Books further by supporting the children's communication about home at school. We have recently introduced a weekly circle time on a Monday morning, which provides the children with an opportunity to share any weekend news. It would be fantastic if you can use the new 'My Weekend News' section of your child's daybook to note down some information about your child's weekend that they might like to share. This will enable us to prompt your child and support them to be able to share their weekend events with their peers and teachers in our small group circle time, as we aim to develop their communication and interaction skills further. If you would like to send in photos or a 'Show and Tell' object after some weekends, then that would be great too!

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours faithfully,

Mrs. J Edington
Deputy Headteacher and SENCo
